Myrtha and Apostoli create modular WellGate designs

Designed by Alberto Apostoli for Myrtha Wellness, WellGate is a versatile, wellness system with integrable technologies including a sauna, steam bath, frigidarium and caldarium.

Tailored to suit existing spaces and layouts, each component incorporates modular stainless-steel structures, exclusively designed by Myrtha, which are adaptable to any aesthetic or technological requirement. The designs' sculptural circular and curved elements, including showerheads and ice fountains, reflect the language of water.

"With WellGate, Italian design meets Myrtha's engineering expertise to redefine wellness architecture," says Apostoli, founder of Apostoli Design. "We have created a harmonious ecosystem in which water, steam and light elevate the sensory journey.

"Our collaboration with Myrtha has resulted in an advanced engineering system that is also sustainable, generating a reduced carbon footprint."

"WellGate sets a new benchmark for contemporary spa architecture."

WellGate offers three distinctive 'atmospheres'. Luxury has rich natural woods and tactile stone textures; Elegance displays refined perforated patterns and harmonious gold or black accents; and Design features bold, minimalistic monochrome expressions.

"WellGate is not simply a thermal product, it's a next-generation wellness ecosystem that sets a new benchmark for contemporary spa architecture," says Stefano Cattaneo, director at Myrtha Wellness.
