Updated Pipestrello lamp created to celebrate 40 years of the Musée d'Orsay

To mark the 40th anniversary of the opening of the Musée d'Orsay, Italian lighting manufacturer Martinelli Luce has created a special limited edition version of the iconic Pipistrello lamp.

Designed in 1965 by Italian architect and designer Gae Aulenti and produced by Martinelli Luce, the Pipistrello lamp is famous for its avant-garde telescopic stem and bat-wing inspired shade. Decades later, in the 1980s, Aulenti was the lead architect who transformed the Gare d'Orsay railway station into the Musée d'Orsay.

The reinterpretation of Auleti's lamp celebrates this historic connection.

The aluminum cone and knob are finished in a distinctive green shade inspired by the architectural details of the museum's interior. It features an opal white methacrylate diffuser, a satin-finished stainless steel telescopic stem, and a chrome-plated metal ring and base.

The lamp is fitted with an LED light source and plug-in power supply.

Produced in three different sizes, the new Pipestrello lamp is engraved with the logos of the Musée d'Orsay and Martinelli Luce.

Apostoli Design and SpaghettiWall unveil goddess-inspired wallpaper collection

Wellness design studio Apostoli Design has unveiled its first wallpaper collection in collaboration with Italian wallpaper manufacturer SpaghettiWall.

Unveiled during Milan Design Week 2026, the Eos collection takes inspiration from the Greek goddess of the dawn.

The collection is available in four colourways: Oro (gold, warm and burnished); Verde Salvia (sage green with iridescent metallic tones); Terra Bruciata (burnt earth, vibrant and organic); and Blu Acciaio (steel blue with deep tonal qualities).

"In Eos, light takes centre stage – not only conceptually, as a generative force and symbol of vitality, but also as a tool capable of transforming spaces, which shift and evolve in response to its presence," said a spokesperson for Apostoli Design.

It composes intimate and atmospheric settings that envelop the guest in deeply immersive environments

"It thus composes intimate and atmospheric settings that envelop the guest in deeply immersive environments, designed to create wellness-oriented ambiences for hospitality and contract contexts."

The wallpaper is available across a range of material substrates developed by SpaghettiWall, suitable for use in areas in direct contact with water. The brand's ultra-high-resolution, just-in-time printing allows for bespoke solutions tailored to a wide variety of project requirements.
